LIBRARY

Guide to the Catalogues and Indexes

The information below should help you to find the material you require, but if you need further assistance please do not hesitate to ask the staff. The Enquiry Point is off Room A.

For most straightforward enquiries the Online Catalogue and the Quick Reference Guide are the best sources to consult.

Online Catalogue

(Available on all PCs)

Almost all of the Library's holdings, except for some non-legal material and some older Commonwealth legal material, may be searched in the online catalogue.

For further information and guidance see the separate leaflet Guide to the Online Catalogues on the display rack in Room A.

Quick Reference Guide

(On panelling between Rooms A and B)

A list of about 200 of the most important titles held, concentrating on legislation, law reports, journals and other serial publications. (Individual textbooks are largely excluded.) Precise locations are given – room and press-number.

Loose copies of the Quick Reference Guide are also available on the display rack in Room A if you would like to keep one to hand where you are working.

Subject Guides To Textbook Collections

There are lists arranged by subject of the following textbook collections: English law, Scots law, EC law, Commonwealth law, Human Rights law and International law. Each list is displayed alongside the collection to which it relates.

Legal Subject Index

(Room B, in black binders, to the right of the window)

An alphabetical list of subject headings, under which selected holdings are listed in chronological order. New material ceased to be added in March 2010.

Card And Sheaf Catalogue

(Room B and at Enquiry Point)

In most cases searching the online catalogue is all that is needed, but it is occasionally necessary to search the card and sheaf catalogues.

Acquisitions up to 1960 are in the blue-bound sheaf catalogue (15 volumes) shelved at the Enquiry Point. Acquisitions from 1961-1991 are in the card catalogue in Room B. The date of a publication cannot always be taken as a reliable guide as to when it was acquired or catalogued, so it is important to remember that you may need to consult both parts.

Entries are under author (e.g. textbooks), title (e.g. journals and law reports) or jurisdiction (mainly legislation), as appropriate.

Where more than one edition of a title is held, entries are arranged chronologically with the earliest first.

Locations are indicated by pencilled press-marks in the left-hand margin of the sheaf catalogue and at the bottom left-hand corner of catalogue cards. Most press-marks consist of the abbreviated name of the relevant section or category, e.g. HIST = History. To find out where a section is located, consult the list of press-marks and adjacent Library plan between Rooms A and B (on the wall panelling) or in Room B (Bay 23).

General Subject Index

(Times Corridor, Gallery)

A complete index (up to 1992) of the Library's holdings (law and non-law) under alphabetical subject headings. Entries give only the author, short-title and dates of editions. For fuller details, and particularly for press-marks, make a note of the author and look that up in the online catalogue.

Legal Abbreviations Index

(Room B)

A comprehensive card index of legal abbreviations based on the major published sources. To find out whether items referred to are held in the Library consult the catalogues.

Other Indexes

A number of specialised card indexes are available. These are situated in Room B and include indexes to:

- ◆ House of Lords Appeal Cases Judgments 1940-1985
- ◆ Privy Council Appeals Judgments 1940-2005

Union List

A union list, which indicates the law reports and journals currently received and the main databases taken by the four Inn Libraries, is available on the display rack in Room A. There are copies to take away (e.g. to keep in chambers). The list is also available for downloading from the Library website: www.innertemplelibrary.org.uk see under Inns of Court Libraries.

The catalogues of the four Inn Libraries can also be accessed at www.innertemplelibrary.org/external.html
